Rev. Thomas Emery
"Passing the Mantle" 2 Kings 2:1-12
Salem Presbyterian Church
February 11, 2018

As a prophet impassioned to fully serve God, Elijah was determined to eradicate the dominant pagan worship in Israel. Our passage for today describes several astounding events that happened toward the completion of Elijah's earthly ministry. Elisha, his understudy, was now ready to take over. Before their eyes, Elijah was swept away in a fiery chariot with horses of fire. The event defied understanding and explanation, and the watching "company of the prophets" (see v.15), found it difficult to believe their eyes. Elijah left behind his prophet's cloak (v.13) to pass the mantle of prophetic ministry to Elisha. The transfer represented that Elijah had challenging work left undone which must be picked up and carried on by Elisha stepping into his own prophetic ministry.

TEACHING POINTS

First. We should live for the life to come.

Second. We have a life to live.

Third. We should live in the face of death.

THIS WEEK'S MEMORY PASSAGE

¹¹As they were walking along and talking, suddenly a chariot of fire appeared, drawn by horses of fire. It drove between the two men, separating them, and Elijah was carried by a whirlwind into heaven (2 Kings 2:11 NLT).

ACTION POINT

In conducting his duties, Elijah had no fear of death, and when his time had ended, God received him into heaven without dying. He reappears in scripture on the Mount of Transfiguration and in the Book of Revelation as one of the two Chapter 11 prophets calling for repentance before God's coming judgment. The chariot event was a preview of the later resurrection of Jesus Christ. Just as Jesus ascended to heaven with His body and soul, so we believers will also be raised as promised by Christ: "I tell you the truth, anyone who believes has eternal life" (John 6:47 NLT). The prophet's cloak was not merely a piece of clothing, but it was also a symbol of a prophetic task still to be completed by Elisha. We, too as followers of Christ, also have a mission to do for God during our lives; that mission is to live as Christ followers and to tell the world about Jesus' free offer of eternal life.
